PRESIDENT Wilson has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of our great country to pray for peace in Europe, and has designated Sunday, October 4, as a day of prayer for that purpose.

SAY, Bro. Edward P. Crow, when and where did you get the idea that we don't care to read your paper? It's a big mistake, Bro., and we trust you won't wait till the ink runs out to print ours next time.

The person who wants to see his town or community in the front rank, in the way of improvements and improved conditions—like the energetic, up-to-date farmer, professional or business man—can always find something to do. Have you ever thought about what a change could be brought about if everybody just hitched on and helped?

The Missouri Press association met in St. Louis last week and from what we noticed in regard to it in the papers, the attendance was large and the meeting a very interesting and most enjoyable for all present. This scribe desired very much to have been of the number, but court was in session here and being unable to secure some one to do our work, made it out of the question for us to be there.

Republicans are hoping that the feeling of over-confidence in Democratic ranks throughout the country will cause many democrats to stay at home on election day. Boys, this is a mistake. The democrats are all going to the polls in order that there may be no doubt about the result. We must have a democratic congress to continue carrying out the policies of the Wilson administration—Democratic Press Bulletin

The Virginia legislature has passed a very stringent dog law that is thought will put an end to sheep killing dogs in that state. A great many farmers are going into the sheep raising business now. Heretofore it has been impossible to raise sheep on account of the dogs. The law imposes a $50 fine on every dog running at large unaccompanied by his master. In many states there is a necessity of a law of this kind but the politicians are afraid to vote for its enactment as such a vote means political death.—Benton Democrat

It will be noticed by a news column that the divorce cases are holding up well. When all other branches of litigation fall down, it seems that this part holds up. After a couple fail to get along the divorce is possibly a necessary evil, but an ounce of prevention is worth several tons of cure in this case. If some people would be just half as careful in selecting a husband or wife as planning a home, buying a horse or an automobile, the divorce courts wouldn't be so busy. Marriage is a sacred thing, not to be abused and made common place.—Poplar Bluff Citizen Democrat

The Pemiscot Argus says there is developing considerable opposition to the parole system; not so much to the system itself as to the unwise use so often made of the system. There seems to be a very generally diffused idea that there is no punishment for the first crime committed, no difference how brutal or heinous. This was not contemplated by the framers of the law, we are sure. The parole should be invoked only when circumstances indicate that the crime was not premeditated and where there was considerable mitigation on other lines.—Benton Democrat

It is not because of the cutting short of the business carried on between the United States and foreign countries by reason of the great war in Europe that this country is to be hit the hardest. When the war in Europe is over, the defeated nations are going to have such a tremendous burden of taxation laid upon them the condition of the people will be insufferable for years to come. This will drive immense hordes away from their native countries to escape the misery and hardship which must be their lot if they remain where they are. These hordes will of course turn their gaze to the best country the sun shines on, the United States of America. Unless congress legislates to in a great measure control immigration, this country is apt to be flooded by alien hordes from Europe bringing with them foreign and alien ideas of government and society to the detriment and danger of our American institutions and ideals.—Jackson Cash-Book

Two years ago the republican spellbinders and curbstone politicians were telling the people how cheap everything they produce would be if the democrats got control of the government. Now since the calamities they predicted have failed and flatly refused to happen, they are chewing the rag about the high cost of living. We do think the democratic party ought to quit furnishing the republicans with campaign thunder! But say, bud, they do need it most "powerful bud" now, and it would look so selfish, you know to make a fuss about it! But, candidly a party ought to be able to go to the people with something more reasonable. The Wilson administration is in no way responsible for the three crop failures we have had in succession, which brought about a scarcity of farm products, nor is it responsible for the great war going on in Europe that brought about still greater demands for the necessities of life. The people know all this and will not be fooled by any amount of argument. It don't make a bit of difference what the republican politicians say, Mr. Wilson is getting closer to the common people of this country every day, and he has won the respect and admiration of men in all parties.

Some of our republican friends are sweating and sweltering in anticipation of the war tax. They are emitting the blood sweat of the death chamber. Awful, terrible, police, MURDER! They are dying by the thousands all over the country in fear of the dreadful consequence of the war tax. They are afraid the country is going to be taxed to death. A system of taxes will be resorted to that will realize one hundred million a year. It may be but a few months, which would mean a smaller sum to be raised. At any event it will not be felt. Some of the republicans are attempting to leave the impression that a democratic tariff has caused a deficit in the treasury, necessitating the new war tax. The facts are that there was a surplus of thirty-five million dollars realized in the operation in one year under the democratic tariff bill. The European war cutting off imports is what stopped the receipt of customs and insured a loss of one hundred million a year. That same condition would have existed under a republican, progressive or what not administration. The war tax noise sounds like a fish that has been drinking too much. It is about the poorest line of calamity howling the "text book" politician can resort to.—Poplar Bluff Citizen Democrat
